

Young Writers' Camp

In addition to the Summer Institute and Fall Summit, the Florida State University Writing Project is introducing a new component this summer: the Young Writers' Camp. The Camp is designed for rising sixth- through rising ninth-grade students who enjoy writing and wish to develop further their writing skills. Over forty students applied for the twenty-five slots at the Camp that will run mornings from July 10th through the 13th at Florida State University School. Campers will participate in small and large group workshops and individual one-on-one sessions with experienced teacher writing consultants, working to move projects of the Campers' choice to the publication stage. The Young Writer's Camp will culminate in a shared Open House with the Summer Institute on July 13th. For more information:
